

Ben Heidinger Group 17 Individual Status Report 4

Section 1, Previous Week's Goals:

I will finish my html and start to contribute and commit actual bits of code as I work with my team to better understand Github and how it works between people. I will also continue to learn flask and become proficient enough to delve into my portion of the website and the flask side of it.

Section 2, Weekly Progress:

1. What I've done: I helped create the features document using the Gherkin notation, mainly focusing on the user stories that I had been assigned based off of the backlog. I also worked on html and general project maintenance and testing
2. What worked: Our communication is working well and we have made some good strides in terms of working on the features of the project
3. What I learned: I learned how to better utilize github and we all created new branches for our work on the project. I also learned how to use databases and more about unit testing
4. What I had trouble with: I had trouble with databases and finding time to work on my assigned project features
5. What I got stuck on: I got really stuck on understanding and implementing the database and everything having to do with it

Section 3, Future Plans:

I am going to create the HTML and CSS for all the pages as well as implement the feature I was assigned in the backlog: being able to edit events. I need to really focus and get a lot of work done so that we can have a minimum viable product by Sunday.
